

MOTIVATION

the journey

MATCH 2020- DATE

Since COVID broke out in early 2020, life has not been easy, we have had to adapt to changes in lifestyle and behaviour, sometimes required to stay indoors for quite long, something we were not used to, or avoid certain ways of working and minimize contacts with people as much as we can. To do this, one can only remain motivated in order to achieve goals

MY 4 DRIVE THEORY

MY 4 DRIVE THEORY

The four drive theory basically looks at what drives a person to achieve a specific goal or objective, well the reasons may go beyond just financial rewards and attainment. They are innate and intrinsic to every human at a given stage of everyday life

DRIVE TO ACQUIRE

Even though 1 to 1 classrom has been limited since the pandemic started, remote learning and digital access to information have still been fruitful. Under the need to acquire, one of the needs I have been striving to acquire is knowledge, I read alot from blogs, you tube videos, and class-room course works. This has been one way of achieving this need/drive

DRIVE TO BOND

Digital classroom scenerios have still offered an opportunity to bond with one another, at times we create video chats and discussion groups where we engage in numerous topics and themes. Social media has been another place to connect, bond and share memories together

DRIVE TO COMPREHEND

Study groups and discussions have been effective during assignments and discussions. We occasionally meet to solve probems and discuss challenges with our fellow peers. Discourse channels and whatsapp groups have also become effective in assisting students learn and understand certain topics in life

DRIVE TO DEFEND

My love for family and closely loved ones has seen me trying by all means to defend them from the infectious COVID 19. We do this by wearing masks at all times, washing our hands frequently with running water and maintaining social distance whenever in public to avoid acquiring the virus

CONCLUSION

Even in the midst of a pandemic, the students have not been spared, either, the social and economic lives of students were disrupted, nonetheless, students still found a way to cope and meet the 4 drives of human motivations, with technology being their key driver
